Bronach has a busy practice in all areas of family law including care proceedings, private law proceedings and financial remedy proceedings.

Bronach represents Local Authorities, parents, grandparents and guardians in care proceedings and has appeared in cases involving a wide range of issues including allegations of non-accidental injury, child sexual abuse, child abduction and hardship.

Bronach is regularly instructed in private children disputes and has appeared in cases involving allegations of forced marriage, parental alienation and domestic abuse. Bronach also has experience of surrogacy cases dealing with issues of legal parentage.

During the BPTC, Bronach undertook pro bono work with the National Centre for Domestic Violence and the Family Advice Scheme which was founded to advise and represent those at court who could not afford legal representation due to the cuts to legal aid.

Before commencing pupillage, Bronach worked as a paralegal in the family department of a Legal 500 firm mainly working on a financial remedy and private children cases including cases with an international element. The role included drafting a range of legal documents and advising and representing clients at court.

Bronach is on the Metropolitan Police Legal Services Panel of Barristers dealing with Family Matters.
