About

Peter Lynch has over 30 years of experience at the bar, initially focused on criminal law and personal injury. Before coming to the Bar, Peter was commissioned into the 14th /20th Kings Hussars and served in both the Regular Army and Reserves. Whilst a Regular Army Officer he sat on Courts Martial and was the Regular Army Adjutant of a Reserve Unit.

Practice overview

Peter's practice now extends to all levels of family law, where he handles a wide range of children's cases, both public and private, showcasing his extensive expertise. He appears in matters concerning nullity (including foreign marriages), domestic violence and injunctions, adoption (including same-sex couples), removal of children and placement outside the jurisdiction, non-accidental injuries, shaken baby cases, sexual abuse and chronic neglect.

Peter's versatility is demonstrated in his role, where he is often instructed to represent the local authority, parents, and the children's guardians. His ability to adapt to the needs of different parties is a key strength in his practice.

Peter is currently a legal advisor to the Army regarding army cadets. He has retired after nine years as a committee member and trustee of the Army Cadet Force Association.
