About

Judith Charlton's extensive practice in all aspects of the law relating to children, particularly Public Law Children Act proceedings, is balanced by her considerable experience representing both Local Authorities and parents in Care Proceedings. This balanced approach is a testament to her fairness and professionalism.

Practice overview

Judith Charlton is available for advisory and opinion paperwork, providing detailed legal advice on various family law issues. She is also open to direct access instructions, particularly in private law children matters, allowing clients to engage her services without the need for a solicitor.

Judith appears at all levels of Tribunal and made history by representing the child in the first family case to be heard by the Supreme Court following its opening in 2009. This pioneering role underscores her commitment and expertise in child law. Judith has a particular interest in cases involving allegations of non-accidental injury to children.
